Vons By Juan

We were walking to Vons. I was with Annia, Juan, and Kai. First we interviewed Angela. She showed us around the building. She showed us the bakery, the dry foods, the cheese, and a lot more. We sat out at the tables. We wrote things that she said like Vons gives a little bit of food and money. She is a checker. She was working at Vons helps the community because they sell fruits and vegetables to people in the store. They also sell cheeses and meat and sandwiches and sushi.

Vons for 35 years! She helps a lot of customers. People need this place to get food and energy. Angela put this place here because it looks like a good place to put it.

Our Trip By Morgan

Vons is a grocery store. They have flowers that are not real. There is food and there are things that help people. They have toys, but mostly food. They have a sushi and cheese station, and a coffee area. There is a cake area with a ladybug cake that is really tall.

Vons has some vegetables that came from farms. There was one map and if you already know Vons, do not use the Vons map. It used to be an old naval station, then they turned it into a store that was named Vons. There is no free stuff from Vons. Angela is a checker there, because it is a good place to work. She helps the customers. She checks the prices. She helps people by telling them directions about where to go. She gives great smiles. Vons gives foods to people that have cancer. Vons is next to our school. I like Vons because I can meet nice people and they give us sweet strawberries and they give people food.

Books! Books! Books!

By Ella

On Wednesday, April 25, 2012, our class (in groups) went to different places in Liberty Station. My group went to the Yellow Book Road. On the way, we took pictures of different places in our community. We asked Vicki (the person we interviewed) questions and she answered them. This bookstore helps the community by helping children find books and giving events. Vicki unpacks boxes, puts data in the computers, helps customers, loves children's books, and helps everyone. We had a great time. In the bookstore, there were high shelves and low ones. There were 25 to 30,000 books. There were puppets. This bookstore is in Barracks 19. It's a small bookstore with only one room. We saw the manager. The people that worked there wanted to move the Yellow Book Road to Liberty Station because they had the bookstore at a different place. It was on the side of the road and people could not walk in. They wanted to put the place there because they wanted people to walk in. The people we met were really friendly. It's a nice little place and the books looked like they had good stories.

These are the people we met at the Yellow Book Road, Vicki and Ann.

The Book Store Visit

By Rigel

I at first thought Yellow Book Road was a library, but when I went inside I figured out it was a book store. A banner is on the arch. The person we interviewed was named Vicki. Vicki helps people find books. She unpacks books. She works there because she likes books a lot. She helps everyone. Yellow Book Road is a cool place to get books.

Food on the Go

By Paloma

Panera is a place that donates food like cookies, bread, and lots of other stuff. Panera is both a bakery and restaurant. We met someone who's name is Eric. Eric's a manager. There is a place to get a drink, coffee, a patio, a place you can eat, and a kitchen. People need Panera to relax and eat. People that work there cook, bake, collect money, and serve food. When I go to Panera, I like to look at the cookies.

About Panera

By Peter

This guy named Eric showed us around this place called Panera Bread. Eric is really nice. There's a coffee place and a drink place. You can get ice from there. There is a bathroom next to the drink place. We got Panera Bread hats. We got pastries too. They were really good. They donate food to people. They have to be nice to do their job. If they are not nice to people then they won't do the job and they will have no job. They will be really sad and that will be sad that they don't have any job. They will want a job, just any job they can find. They won't be able to get yummy pastries, so that's why they need to be nice to people, so they could do their job. People need Panera so they could go to the bathroom, get drinks that are yummy and food from that place. The food, cookies, and pastries are yummy too. There's some honey on the counter, I think to make the tea and coffee sweet. And people, I think eat it plain with cups and bowls. I liked my trip to Panera. We took pastries to school.

This is Eric showing us inside Panera.
